Is there any part of this funding that isn't restricted? What's our view on increased rental income? How much, when and how do we get at it? It's, on the face of it, a very different market we're targeting

The soundproofed booth sounds a very good idea to me, making the whole thing more attractive to potential hirers (noise from other rooms will be a big problem otherwise). The fact that it is a pod rather than built in is also a bonus. Obviously given the current crisis I realise it's a tricky decision, but I think this could be a very good asset for the Centre.

I think this is too good an opportunity to lose. The benefits include being able to attract commercial organisations to use the Pod for creating content for themselves (and create a decent income) but also would allow young people to get involved in something which could really appeal- perhaps reaching the disaffected.
